PRINCESS TRIXIE WONDERFUL HORSE

Gave Many Remarkable Exhibitions at Academy of Music Yesterday.

His performance of Princess Trixie, an educated horse, made several thousand people sit up and stare at the Academy of Music yesterday afternoon and last night, for she demonstrated that she was truly remarkable, and proved that what is known as horse sense is about the best gray matter after all.

Professor Barnes, her owner and trainer, and the Princess, understood each other thoroughly. From the basket filled with blocks, containing numbers and letters, she picks them out to spell words hurled at her from the audience, and then shows that she knows a few things about arithmetic.

Last night a little girl in the dress circle asked Trixie to spell Malloy. Barnes did not repeat the word, and in about thirty seconds the "Malloy" blocks were properly arranged. Reaching her shapely neck over the footlights, Trixie examined a man's watch, and then gave the correct time. These were only a few of her tricks.

Saw Good-Looking Woman.

The women sitting on the two front rows were counted, and a moment later Trixie looked from a large assortment of colors those which corresponded with the dress and hat of the woman she regarded as the most beautiful. There were blouses in the front row and cheers higher up. A regulation cash register was punctured by the animal in a number of calculations, and to prove that her education was complete in all lines she performed with the swinging bells. She went through the colic program, laid down on her back and gave correct imitation of a horse with the spasms, and then bowed delightedly when the audience applauded. Altogether, it was a wonderful exhibition—many of them during the day, for that matter—and everybody was charmed.

Professor Barnes, who, by the way, was one of the great makers of the Exposition Warpath, came here at the special invitation of the women interested in the financial welfare of the Virginia Home for incurables, and a good part of yesterday's proceeds went to that institution. From 12 to 24 until 5 o'clock this evening Trixie will give hourly performances at the Academy, and will leave in style for New York to night. The performances to-day will not be for the benefit of the Home for incurables, however, but will be a regular exhibition given by the owner of the horse.

Object Lesson.

Many persons who had seen Jim Koy a few years ago voted the honors to him, but it seemed to be the general opinion that Princess Trixie had taken a post-graduate course at some horse college for she was the smartest horse seen around here. Apart from all that, it was a fine object lesson to the people, and children more especially, for it demonstrated what an animal could be taught, provided patience and kindness are shown by the friend and teacher.

Trenton Stays in Tri-State.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., December 6.—The Tri-State League has loomed up as a stumbling block to the Tri-State League, and it is becoming a member of the Eastern League.

President Charles Carpenter, of the Tri-State League, said that the Tri-State has developed Trenton as baseball territory, and that he would veto the proposition of Owner Perrine to let Montreal's franchise in the Eastern League.

MAY GET BIG COLLEGES IN.

Annual Meeting of Intercollegiate Athletic Association This Month.
NEW YORK, December 6.—The annual meeting of the Intercollegiate Athletic Association of the United States has been called for December 27th at the Murray Hill Hotel. This association, which grew out of the conference of colleges when football was on the rack, has been slowly but surely working along lines which have led to the uplifting of intercollegiate sports. Most of the larger universities have not joined, as yet, but a committee, appointed for the purpose, is likely to report favorably on a plan which will make it possible for Yale, Princeton and the other leading universities to enter, and so enlarge the scope of the association.

HOWITZERS WILL MIX WITH TIGERS

Farewell Football Contest of the Season at Broad Street To-Day.

The Howitzers and Tigers football teams will meet in a match at Broad Street Park at 3:30 this afternoon in the farewell gridiron game of the season, and one which promises to be a stubbornly fought. Both the elevens have made good records during the season now closing, and are so well matched that it is a toss-up to pick the winner. Both teams have defeated all other rival local elevens, and the Tigers have won once by a single score from the Howitzers. The Howitzers recently played a clever game in Fredericksburg against the strong college team there, and though beaten, they made a creditable showing. Not having as much opportunity for practice nor the benefit of expert coaching like the collegians, the local elevens are not as proficient in team work as the college elevens, but against teams in their class they play spirited and clever ball. The boys are confident of a large attendance to see the good-by game of the year. The weather promises to be ideal for the sport, crisp, clear and cool.

JACK GRIM AFTER PENNANT AGAIN

Lynchburg Manager Signs Nine New Ones—His Pitching Staff Intact.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
LYNCHBURG, Va., December 6.—Manager Grim, of the local baseball team, who is spending the winter at Cincinnati, Ohio, writes that he has signed nine new men for the team for next season, as well as "Red" Kilne, one of last season's star pitchers. It is believed here that Holt, the star first-baseman, will be used behind the bat next season with new man, who will be seen on first, second and at short. Kirkpatrick, who belongs to Richmond, will probably be turned over to the local team and will cover third. The pitching staff will include R. E. Stewart, Murray and Oakley, who will probably have to fight for their positions with several new men. Hooker is a fixture in center field, and Anthony, a strong probability in left, though he may be sold, if a heavier hitter can be found for that position. Manager Grim will try only experienced men next season in order to get the team down to thirteen men as early as possible.

CHASED NANNIE ALL WAY TO MANCHESTER

Woman Ran Through Mile of Alleys, and Then Jumped on Street Car.

After a long, hard-fought battle for the possession of an apron, which Ellen Wren, colored, alleged was stolen from her by Nannie Cephas, also colored, the former was worsted, and then began a foot-race, Ellen attempting to sight a police officer before Nannie should get beyond her reach.

The first argument occurred near the corner of Grove Avenue and Roland Street, where the Cephas woman had gone into the residence in which Ellen was employed and snatched up the latter's apron. Nannie was smart. She took to her heels, with Ellen, hatless, coatless and with only house slippers on her feet, chasing close behind her. Winding in and out among the many alleys between Roland Street and Seventh Street, Nannie finally jumped on a Hull Street car, and she landed in Manchester, still running, before her pursuer was able to sight a policeman. Panting and breathless, the two rushed up Hull Street, and Nannie was going. Policeman Waymack, as it happened, was standing on a corner, as the pair passed, and Ellen hailed him as she traveled by. Found the Apron.

"Catch her," she screamed; "catch her. She's got my apron and gloves." Officer Waymack joined in the chase, and being fresh and long-legged, he soon overhauled the one pursued. He caught her in short order, and took her back to the Police Station. Still fighting and fussing, the one swore her innocence, and the second swore to the other's guilt. To settle the matter, Policeman Waymack decided to hold Nannie while the other searched the prisoner. Going skillfully through the other's clothing, Ellen soon found her apron. Wiping it free from the hidden recesses of Nannie's apparel a pocket-book containing $7.67 also dropped to the ground.

The officers thought they had captured a real burglar. They telephoned to the Richmond police, and Sergeant Gibson, and Acting Detective Wiley responded. They arrested Nannie on the warrant of Ellen, and then called the automobile patrol over to bring the woman back to Richmond.
